TAKING THE WRONG STAND.

The press of our land is in many instances severely criticising President Roosevelt, blaming him for the probable injury to foreign trade by the recent Neill-Reynolds disclosures. If the conditions stated in the reports of these gentlemen exist, and after careful consideration they do not seem near so sensational as some would have them appear, this will undoubtedly be the result, but in justice to the foreign nations who purchase their meat supplies of American packers, why should it not be injured? Who is the better friend of the Foreign trade and the home consumers, he who uncovers the iniquity or he who permits it to exist? Are the health and lives of the American people to be sacrificed that the heads of the packing industries may further add to their already overflowing coffers? Better that the guns be turned from our chief executive for a little while and their scathing fire be directed toward the corporations responsible for the facts.

RESIDENTS are required to purchase metal garbage cans to prevent the accumulation of leakage which breeds disease, but at the same time the garbage man is allowed to use an open wagon, which he stops on the main streets in front of places of business, where not only the escaping odor causes much annoyance but the drippings in some cases create an unbearable odor for several days. A little well exercised judgment would make the present conditions more tolerable in the event of an absolute cure being at once impossible.

The Great Nerve Tonic

Read this letter

Galien, Mich.

Gentlemen: I bought three bottles of your medicine from my druggist. The medicine rendered me very good service, but I am sorry to say that the druggists here are all sold out of your medicine. I should have bought six bottles instead of three. I will gladly take six bottles of the Nervine and Blood Tonic, and request that you write me, if you are able to read this, for I am rather old to write. I have suffered six years from NERVOUS TROUBLE, caused by a fall, and my whole body remained in a tremble, but no pain. Every doctor I consulted failed to help me, and I was compelled to give up all housework. Then I read your advertisement and bought your medicine, and almost immediately after commencing its use I was a new woman. I hope you will write me at once, and tell me how much money I must send, as I am anxious to get to using your medicine again soon. With most hearty regards, I remain,

MRS. MARIE A. PRENKERT.

WISE WORDS OF SUFFERERS

From a Woman of Notre Dame, Ind.

I will mail, free of any charge, this Home Treatment with full instructions and history of my own case to any lady suffering with female trouble. You can cure yourself at home without the aid of any physician. It will cost you nothing to give the treatment a trial, and if you decide to continue it will only cost you about 12 cents a week. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell Tell other sufferers of it—This is all I ask. It cures all, young or old.

If you feel a bearing-down sensation, sense of impending evil, pain in the back or bowels, creeping feeling up the spine, a desire to cry frequently, hot flashes, weariness, frequent desire to urinate, or if you have Leucorrhea (Whites), Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, address Mrs. M. Summers for the Free Treatment and Full Information Thousands besides myself have cured themselves with it. I send it in plain wrappers.

TO MOTHERS OF DAUGHTERS I will explain a simple Home Treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in young ladies. It will save you anxiety and expense and save your daughter the humiliation of explaining her troubles to others. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well known ladies of your own State or county who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all diseased conditions of our delicate female organism, thoroughly strengthens relaxed muscles and ligaments which cause displacement, and makes women well. "From my own experience and through observation I know that your celebrated Home Treatment is a successful cure for Leucorrhea, Painful and Irregular Menstruation, and even Falling of the Womb." MRS. D. TOEBELMANN, 1913 So. Fifth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

What Came of a Scullion

[Original.]

There was trouble on the mind of the chief cook of Signor Fallero, a wealthy Venetian gentleman living in France. Signor Fallero had invited a number of distinguished people to dinner. There were to be princes, nobles and merchants of Venice and, more important than all, a number of art critics. I say "more important than all" because that was an age when the fine arts flourished and a man who could judge of a painting or a statue was looked up to more than one possessing birth or wealth. At any rate, these men were of more intrinsic worth than all the rest at this dinner of the Venetian.

But what was amiss in the kitchen? A confectioner who had been charged with making a large candy ornament to decorate the table had sent word that it had been spoiled and there was no time to make another. The chief cook stormed and tore his hair. Perfection was his aim, and what would all the delicacies he had prepared avail without the georgeous centerpiece?

A boy who served as scullion advanced and said in a timid voice:

"If you will let me, I think I can make you something that will do in place of the confectionery piece."

"You, Antonio? What do you know about fashionable things?"

"I have worked in the yard of my grandfather, Pisano, the stonecutter."

"Nonsense! A stonecutter knows nothing about artistic work."

The boy begged hard, and as there was nothing else to be done he was given permission to try his hand. He sent for some butter and fashioned it into a crouching lion. It was placed upon the table, and soon after the princes, the merchants and the art critics were ushered into the dining room. The chief cook wore a melancholy look, keeping his eye fixed on what he considered a blemish to an otherwise splendid table. The guests ranged themselves around the table and took seats.

The cook saw one of the art critics looking fixedly at the butter lion, and the poor man inwardly cursed the moment that he had consented to use the scullion's work. Then he noticed that the art critic said something to the man sitting next to him, and they both looked at the lion. The chief cook's knees trembled beneath him. Surely his master would discharge him for putting this fierce looking creature that was made of such soft material before these great men. He had hoped they would not especially notice it, and already two of them were looking at it and talking about it. But when several other groups laid down their spoons, neglecting the soup that had cost the chef so much pains and began to stare at the centerpiece he was in despair.

"Signor Fallero," said the man who had first noticed the lion, "we are not surprised at your munificence in gracing your table with a work of genius, but we are at a loss to know how you obtained the services of one who should consent to place the expression of his genius in so perishable a substance as butter."

The host looked at the lion, then inquiringly at the chief cook. The latter had become so confused over the outcome of his substitution of a few pounds of butter for a splendid candy centerpiece that he did not hear or did not understand what the guest had said. He broke down and confessed his culpable folly.

"Signor," he said tremulously, "pardon my iniquity. Just before the dinner was ready the confectioner sent word that he had spoiled the splendid candy centerpiece I had ordered and which would have been in every way worthy of your noble guests. When I was in great distress at this mishap Antonio, the scullion, came to me and offered to make something to fill its place. In an evil hour I listened to him. If you and your noble guests will forgive me I will remove the blemish."

For a moment there was a hush of astonishment about the table; then the guest that had spoken, an eminent art critic, said to the chief cook:

"Do you mean to tell me that the lion was fashioned by a scullion and shortly before dinner?"

"Yes, signor. He begged so hard"—

"Signors," said the critic, "one of the world's greatest geniuses has been born!"

"The boy, the boy! Let us see the boy!" cried the guests.

"Send him in," said the host to the cook.

The mystified servant retired and in a few minutes returned, bringing with him the scullion.

"Signors," said the host, "this is—Boy, what's your name?"

"Antonio Canova," said the astonished boy.

Then the critic, rising, held forth his wineglass and said:

"Antonio Canova, I drink to an artist. Gentlemen, drink with me to Antonio Canova. May his genius grow constantly brighter."

The guests rose and drank the toast, while the astonished boy stared at them as if he had suddenly come under the influence of enchantment. Then his host told him that his scullion work was ended. He had resolved to be responsible for the boy's education.

The promise was kept. The works afterward achieved by the great sculptor are curious not only for their intrinsic value, but that they came from such a small beginning. It is a remarkable fact that the beautiful marble "Cupid and Psyche," the delight of all civilized mankind, should have been produced by one who was once a scullion. F. TOWNSEND SMITH.

The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."
